

Can you think of different people in your life who have guided you? Maybe it is your mom or dad who taught you how to pray or be nice to people. Or maybe it is your school or darsa teacher who has taught you so many amazing things! Or is it the librarian at your library who has showed you different kinds of books that you could read? Maybe it is your brother or sister who has showed you how nice it is when you share stuff with each other or play together? Is it a friend who has guided you and showed you what a nice friend can be like? Can you think of anyone else who has guided you? How about All-h? Or the Prophets or Imams? Maulanas?

It is always nice to thank someone who helps us. Let us do that here by writing a thank you letter to one of these people who have guided you. First of all, think of who you would like to thank. Then write a letter telling them what you are thanking them for and then tell them how you will be able to use this guidance.

Dear _____

Salaam alaykum. I hope you are well. I wanted to write this letter to thank you for

I hope this letter shows how much I love you and all that you do to help guide me. I hope to see you soon and be able to give you a hug to show you much I care! With love and du'as,
